President's Message

Greetings, Members and Friends of the Society.

We are nearing completion of the architectural overview of the History Center, made possible by a generous grant from the Dresher Foundation. Recommendations include a lift to access items in our basement archival storage area, handicap-accessible bathroom facilities, entrance improvements, and a kitchen modification to support hosting events better. We will expand the exhibit area, the Peden Library, and the research space. We'll do this in phases, and it will require capital funding. When done, it will be amazing.

Along with this project, the Society's staff and volunteers continue to work tirelessly on the archival collections, museum displays, and events at both the History Center and the Hays House Museum. Over the summer, we hosted guest speakers, Dan Coates, who presented a fascinating program on local archeology and the petroglyphs, and Dr. Amy Rosenkrans, who presented a program on the Suffrage movement and the Kellys of Lirodendron. In September, the Society presented an amazing performance by Alisa Dupuy and Curt Radabaugh, Martha and George: A Love Story. These talented performers took the audience back to the early days of Washington's life through his untimely death. Breaking from tradition, we brought in an exciting motorcycle exhibit, some rarely seen and all amazing. This exhibit, entitled Harford County on Two Wheels: Preserving a Racing Legacy, drew a large number of guests who shared their memories of the good old days and cycling adventures, helping pass these stories down through generations.

We are planning even more amazing museum displays, events, publications, and programs, but we need your help to make it happen. Each October, we reach out to you for our Annual Giving Campaign.

Annual Meeting and 39th Annual Dr. George W. Archer Memorial Lecture

Join us on Saturday, November 14, 2026, at 2 pm for this year's Annual Meeting and Dr. George W. Archer Memorial Lecture. President Charles Castoro, M.D., will highlight the Society's many programs and accomplishments over the past year. We will recognize this year's George W. Archer Fellowship Award winner and share a few surprise announcements.

The Historical Society's Bylaws require the Board, through its Nominating Committee, to nominate a list of possible Trustees and place it on the ballot at the Annual Meeting. This year, the nominating committee has submitted the following candidates for consideration:

Victor Miller, Christopher Smithson, Shelley Dolan, and Kate Umbarger Dallam.

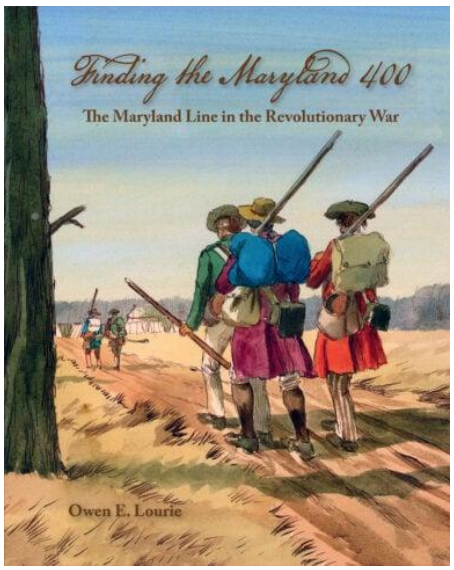
Following the formal program and election, participants will share light refreshments, followed by the annual Dr. George W. Archer Memorial Lecture.

Dr. George W. Archer Memorial Lecture Series

The Historical Society of Harford County, Inc., Maryland's oldest historical society, was organized in 1885. Thanks to the dedication and labor of Harford County physician-scholar George Washington Archer, M.D. (1824-1907), the Society began assembling the original materials that form its basic archival collection. In 1986, to honor the memory of this dedicated founder and archivist, the Society established the George W. Archer Lecture Series. Past speakers have included authors, architects, historians, planners, educators, and politicians. Each presentation offered an opportunity for research and reflection on Harford County's past in the context of the state and the nation.

This year's Archer lecturer will be author, historian, and archivist Owen Lourie, author of Finding the Maryland 400. His recently released book tells the story of the brave Marylanders who fought at the Battle of Brooklyn, including many from Harford County.

Owen Lourie, Author and Historian



Author Owen Lourie's presentation takes you on an amazing journey with Maryland troops in the first major battle of the American Revolution. Learn why we are called the Old Line State, and how these brave men saved the nation. Learn more about these soldiers, now known as the Maryland 400, and hear firsthand accounts of their actions in the battle. This talk will also discuss several soldiers from the unit, exploring their lives and their families' lives during and after the Revolutionary War.

As a short preview, on August 30, 1776, Maryland Major Mordecai Gist wrote, "The principal loss sustained in our battalion fell on Captains Veazey, Adams, Lucas, Ford, and Bowie's companies. The killed, wounded, and missing amount to two hundred and fifty-nine." Where those killed are buried is uncertain to this Day.

The outcome of the Battle of Brooklyn was a victory for the British, who killed or captured 1,000 Americans and proceeded to occupy Brooklyn and Manhattan for seven years. However, the British failed to capture Washington and his Army, which withdrew across the East River to fight again and, eventually, win the War.

Among those captured were three Harford County soldiers, brothers William and Samuel McMillan and Edward Prall. Learn about their harrowing experiences in captivity and the many stories of terror and heroism faced by these troops in the Battle of Brooklyn. In 1783, the British finally surrendered, sailing from New York in defeat, and America began its journey as an independent nation. This is a unique opportunity to learn what it took to reach that final surrender and the sacrifices made to build this nation.

Owen Lourie is the Senior Archivist at the Maryland State Archives, a historian, and a celebrated lecturer. Registration required: www.harfordhistory.org. Members $20; Non-members $35.

As part of his recovery, the therapists at Perry Point recommended he keep a diary. This resulted in an amazing record of life in Harford County between 1932 and 1943. As a special tribute to Veterans Day, the Jarrettsville Library is hosting Mr. Sterner, who will share one veteran's story you won't easily forget. WHAT'S NEW AT THE HAYS HOUSE

It is hard to believe that we are already gearing up for the Holiday season at the Hays House. We will hold an Open House on November 8 from 1:00 pm to 4:00 pm to wrap up our regular season of events. If you have not been to the Hays House recently, please stop by.

This year's holiday theme will be Holiday Traditions Across the Years. We will start our events on November 22 at 1:00 pm with an introduction to holiday traditions in Colonial America. Decoration of homes was not a tradition in colonial times, and the Hays House will not be decorated for this presentation.

The Evergreen Garden Club will decorate the Hays House after Thanksgiving, and all of our December programs will feature a house decorated with fresh greens and nature-inspired decorations.

Each week will include a presentation on the history of specific Christmas traditions. Our December 20 presentation will feature a return of the WABAC Consort, a local group that performs period music on period instruments. The group also discusses the history of the music they perform and the instruments they play. This is an amazing opportunity to step back in time musically.

- November 22: The Holiday Season: Celebrating (or Not!) in Colonial America

What was the Christmas holiday like in colonial America? How did they observe the holiday, or did they? Visit us on November 22 and go back in time to see how colonial America prepared for the season.

- December 6: Rise of Christmas Traditions

The Hays House is decked out with beautiful seasonal decorations. But where did these traditions start? The Christmas tree! Decorations, gift-giving, caroling! You may be surprised at the answers.

- December 13: Victorians LOVED Christmas!

Many of today's favorite Christmas traditions were popularized in the 1800s during Queen Victoria's reign. Visit the Hays House and enjoy the beautiful natural seasonal decorations. Learn which of the traditions date to Queen Victoria's time. Make your own paper chain for your tree!!

- December 20: WABAC Consort Musical Performance and Christmas in the 1950's

Enjoy a nostalgic Sunday afternoon at the Hays House. Relax as local musicians time-travel through music performed on period instruments! A perfect antidote to the holiday rush! Step back into Bel Air in the 1950s as we conclude our holiday time travel with 50s tinsel and garland.

All programs listed above will be held at The Hays House Museum, 324 Kenmore Avenue, Bel Air, MD 21014, beginning at 1 pm. Visit the Society's website, www.harfordhistory.org, for more information and to register to attend an event.

A Hero's Return: Remembering One of Our Own on Veterans Day

Veterans Day is a time to remember the many sacrifices our troops in the Armed Services have made for us, then and now. This year, we received remarkable news about the return of a Harford County Air Force officer who was lost in World War II.

B-24D Liberator, 41-23817, named 'Suzy Q'. It flew the Ploesti mission, commanded by Col. Leon Johnson, and returned to Benghazi, Libya. August 1 '43. 'Suzy Q', was shot down and lost on 16 Aug '43 with Pilot Walter R. Bateman.

1st Lt. Walter Raymond Bateman grew up in Harford County's Joppa area. After joining the Air Force in the early years of World War II, he became a B-24 Liberator pilot with the 67th Bombardment Squadron, 44th Bombardment Group (Heavy). Bateman was only 22 when he was assigned to pilot the famed B-24D SUZY-Q. On August 16, 1943, he and his nine-man crew departed Benina, Libya, on a bombing mission against German airfields at Foggia, Italy. The plane was last seen burning on the Italian beach believed to be Capo Stilo. When the aircraft failed to return, all ten men were reported missing. For decades, Bateman's fate remained unknown. Unidentified remains recovered in Italy in 1945 were eventually exhumed in 2022 and subjected to modern forensic analysis. On May 29, 2026, the Defense POW/MIA Accounting Agency identified the remains as those of 1st Lt. Walter R. Bateman. After 83 years, the Maryland airman was no longer missing. His identification restored his name to the history of the 44th Bomb Group. It brought long-awaited closure to a story that began in Maryland and ended over wartime Italy.

Members of Harford County's VFW met at BWI Airport on August 28, 2026, to accompany Lt. Bateman's remains to Schimunek's Funeral Home in Bel Air. Services were held at Lt. Bateman's home church, the Union Chapel Church on Old Joppa Road, on September 6, 2026, where his remains are now interred, home at last.

RICHARD'S CORNER

- Prohibition in Harford County

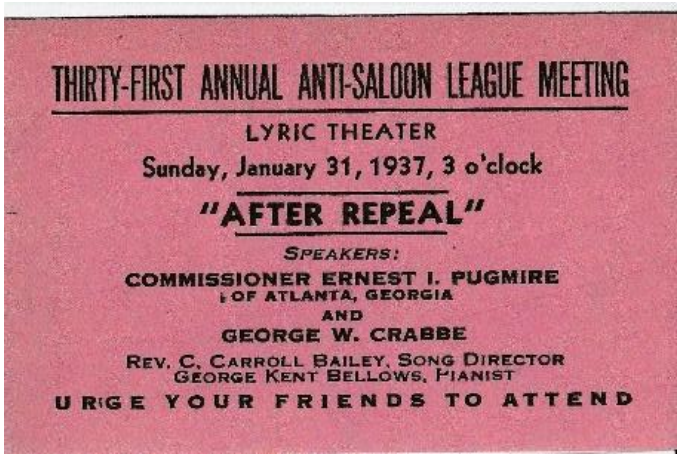
People generally believe Prohibition ended with the passage of the 21st Amendment, but that wasn't true in several Maryland counties, including Harford County. Members of the Anti-Saloon League and Salvation Army fought to maintain the ban. The Anti-Saloon League held annual meetings at The Lyric in downtown Baltimore and lobbied the State Legislature to allow voters to decide whether Prohibition should continue.



Many Harford County residents actively supported the Anti-Saloon League and the efforts of the Salvation Army to curtail liquor traffic, citing the increasing number of drunk driving cases. League membership ranged from 33 ½ cents per month to $50 per month. This fee included an annual subscription to The American Issue: Maryland Edition. Funds supported the group's lobbying efforts. These efforts led to House Bill 272 in 1937, which called for a referendum allowing voters in each election district to decide whether to allow liquor sales in their district. The Lyric Ticket shown here is part of the Society's collection of Anti-Saloon League materials donated by a Fallston family.

Francis R. Bayley, representing the Methodist Church of Harford and Anne Arundel Counties, petitioned the legislature to pass Bill 272. In his speech before the legislature, he stated that:

> The liquor question is a social problem. This is the view taken by the State; else it would not attempt to control it by the license system. The State recognizes that the vending of intoxicants impinges upon property rights, health, liberty, both personal and civil; and upon safety on the highways. In regard to the last, it should be said that the menace here is not so much the "drunken driver" as the "drinking driver" whose reaction time is retarded by alcohol.
> We shall not make any progress toward a solution by ignoring the problem. We had a hundred years of agitation resulting finally in National Prohibition. Many thought that was not the solution and repealed the 18th Amendment, but certainly no informed person will argue that repeal has provided a solution. Our State is wide open, and intoxicants are sold at drug stores, groceries, and filling stations. Sunday selling is permitted, every highway is strung with signs inviting the driver to drink, and even the radio blares to our children the alleged healthfulness of the drink habit. Taverns have sprung up in every countryside, and the people are without effective means of protecting their neighborhoods against the invasion…

Mr. Bayley's speech went on to suggest that passing the legislation would help politicians avoid having to proclaim whether they were "wet" or "dry" in future elections, and this would be a decided advantage. Whether the speech was a deciding factor is unknown, but the legislation passed, and the issue went to referendum. Voters in Bel Air, Havre de Grace, and Aberdeen supported the sale of alcohol, but Darlington voters called for a complete ban on alcohol sales in their district. Fallston and Jarrettsville approved the sale of wine and beer, but not hard liquor. These bans stayed in effect until the County established the County Liquor Board in 1957.

- Ole Time Christmas

An Excerpt from the Old Family Farm: farm life 100 years ago by George Grier

Christmases go back centuries, and they each brought a special meaning to all people. For the farm family, the celebration was usually the same: togetherness and maybe one small present: an orange, some hard candy, and a blessed meal on Christmas Day.

Young George quickly learned what Christmas was all about – his older sisters made sure of that. He watched them go with Papa to find and cut a Christmas tree up on the hill. It was a cedar tree which they dragged down through the snow and put up for Santa Claus to trim.

They all were put to bed early but awoke early on Christmas morning to find that magical person called Santa had gotten into the house. Papa said he came down through the chimney, but the girls said it wasn't big enough.

Anyway, all that questioning was forgotten when Young George and his sisters were allowed to go into the parlor on that Christmas morning, and there it was. The tree was all decorated with large and small colored balls, make-believe horns, and strings of long white popcorn.

They each found their stocking hanging. Mama helped Young George find his. His hand reached down into that old green stocking and found one big round and cold orange. – the first he had ever seen. He reached down a little further and out came a box of hard, red and green candy – the real store-bought kind. Over near the parlor above there were three packages – one each for Mildred and Helen. "Open them up," said Papa. "Let's see what Santa brought you." Mildred got a new red dress; Helen, new black shoes; and young George found in his package a pair of new socks and a tiny pair of bib overalls, just like his Papa's. His Mama had made them out of a pair of Papa's old overalls he had worn out and thrown away.

"And now," Papa said. "I've got to go down to the barn and see if Santa came to see the cows and horses." "Do you really think so?" Helen asked. And Papa replied, "I don't know, but if he wasn't there, I'll give them an extra forkful of hay." The horses won't be working on Christmas Day.

And now it was Mama's turn. "I've got to work on Christmas dinner, and you girls have to help me. We're having Grandpa and Grandma over for our Christmas dinner. They'll want to see your presents." Mama had cooked a large rooster for the dinner. She brought up from the cellar jars of string beans, peas, corn and tomatoes. She also got potatoes, carrots and turnips from the sand pile in the cold room. Mildred said, "Young George, we're going to have a real Christmas dinner nice enough for a king." Of course, Grandpa and Grandma came on time for dinner, but they wanted to see Young George's Christmas presents first. He held them up and said, "See." Grandpa then gave him ten cents and said, "This is for your bank." And the girls too got their ten cents. For dinner, Grandpa was asked to say the blessing.

"On this Christmas Day of 1896, we give thee our thanks. We pray that all little girls and boys have a happy Christmas Day, O Lord, our God. We thank thee for our family and the good dinner we are about ready to eat. Amen"

VOLUNTEERS' CORNER

Claudine Adams

I started at the Historical Society in late 2024 and have only worked on the Glen Deaton records. These are records of a county surveyor from the 1930s to 1980s. This project was started when I worked in the Circuit Courthouse in the Land Records department, and I am anxious to bring it to completion. My hope is this information will be helpful for those looking for certain property records surveyed by Glen Deaton.

IN MEMORIAM

Jule Ann Grepps (1944 – 2026)

On August 15, 2026, treasured Society volunteer Jule Ann Grepps passed away. Born on March 12, 1944, she grew up in Baltimore, Maryland, and lived the last 50 years in Fallston, Harford County. She was the beloved wife of Paul Robert Grepps III, a proud mother, and a hero to her three boys.
